

Howard Jia, Ph.D. Director of Public Affairs, Michigan Falun Dafa Association

Presentation Topic - Brief Introduction of China: history, today and tomorrow.

Howard grew up in Beijing. As a child, he witnessed the Cultural Revolution and was sent to a remote countryside in Jiangxi Province to work as a farmer/fisherman.

Forced to skip middle and high schools, he taught himself English, math and science, and was accepted by a leading university with full scholarship at the end of Culture Revolution.

He obtained his BS from Tianjin University, MS from Carleton University in Ottawa, and a Ph.D. from University of Kentucky, all in engineering.

In his 15 years Ford career, he held a number of positions in engineering and international business development. He was a business manager in Ford China Operation, and an engineering manager in Auto Alliance Thailand.

Currently, he is a development engineer at Chrysler.

He is a member of editorial committee of China Scope (Chinascope.org), a D.C. based think tank focusing on China.

He is Director of Public Affairs for Michigan Falun Dafa Association, a non-profit organization and local presenter of Shen Yun Performance Arts.

His main interests are history, arts, meditation, human rights, and U.S. China relationship.

Howard's talk on China will offer significant insights that are both thought provoking and uplifting. He is happy to answer questions after the talk.

Presentation Topic - Brief Introduction of China: history, today and tomorrow.

Howard grew up in Beijing. As a child, he witnessed the Cultural Revolution and was sent to a remote countryside in Jiangxi Province to work as a farmer/fisherman.

Forced to skip middle and high schools, he taught himself English, math and science, and was accepted by a leading university with full scholarship at the end of Culture Revolution.

He obtained his BS from Tianjin University, MS from Carleton University in Ottawa, and a Ph.D. from University of Kentucky, all in engineering.

In his 15- year Ford career, he held a number of positions in engineering and international business development. He was a business manager in Ford China Operation, and an engineering manager in Auto Alliance Thailand.

Currently, he is a development engineer at Chrysler.

He is a member of the editorial committee of China Scope (Chinascope.org), a D.C. based think tank focusing on China.

He is Director of Public Affairs for Michigan Falun Dafa Association, a non-profit organization and local presenter of Shen Yun Performance Arts.

His main interests are history, arts, meditation, human rights, and U.S.- China relationship.

Howard's talk on China will offer significant insights that are both thought provoking and uplifting. He is happy to answer questions after the talk.