

Kiwanis Speaker for Tuesday, December 14th

Michelle Lutz.

Michelle Lutz is a certified organic farmer who owns & operates Maple Creek Farm with her husband Danny. For the past 16 years Michelle has dedicated herself to the local organic food movement. Maple Creek Farm is located in Yale, St. Clair County & has been operating Michigan's largest CSA (community supported agriculture). Her goals are simple-grow good food without harming or hindering human or environmental health. Sharing, education, inspiring, and motivating others to do the same is one of her main priorities. Today she is here to share with us some of the differences between conventional and organic farming systems and why eating local organic food is important.
