“Sarwat and her husband Sajid, form a great team as co-business owners. Through their help, inspiration and mentorship, hundreds of people have been helped to succeed as business owners. They have a happy approachable personality that attracts others to them. They have many a time gone way out of their way to help and support me. I strongly recommend their association to anybody with a dream to being an entrepreneur.” Satish Reddy, Chief Engineer, ESCG at NASA Johnson Space Center, November 20, 2009

Background

Sarwat is married with two children. Her husband works as an Engineer for GM. She was raised in India. Her parents were very keen on instilling discipline and moral values in their children. "Choose the path of the righteous, the fearless, and the just. The results of your actions may not be visible in your term, but that is not a thing to worry. We are here to make a difference, a positive one, for the next generation, and that is the purpose of our life."

"We lose the essence of any religion, community, nation, or culture, when we get so narrow-visioned that we can't see beyond ourselves. This is our struggle -for each one of us - to have our people understand that others have same rights & feelings as us, then we rise above and become 'human'- something we were intended to be - until then.. we try..
